

Grief

Tending in Community

“Surrendering to your sorrow has the power to heal the deepest of wounds.”
Sobonfu Somé

A gentle yet powerful introduction to grief tending in ceremony.

A day for those on a journey of healing, or feeling impacted by news of the harm being done to people and other living beings or any other sources of grief that need care and tending. And for those who aren't sure what you're bringing – perhaps sensing that a place to be witnessed or express with others feelings of sorrow, anger, numbness and more can free us to be more alive, more connected and even more joyful.

This day offers teachings and practices that support grief to flow, led by an experienced facilitator of this work.

“To be able to openly express our sorrow and grief, together, without being questioned or judged felt so very beautiful; like nothing I've ever experienced before.” KD, 2019

Facilitated by Sophy Banks

Sophy's understanding of the importance of grief work started through attending workshops of Joanna Macy and Sobonfu Some and has continued through more recent work with Maeve Gavin. She has been leading grief tending workshops since 2013 (see below for links). You can read some of her thoughts on grief tending work on www.griegtending.org.

In 2006 as Transition Town Totnes came into being Sophy co-founded the “Heart and Soul” group, addressing the inner aspects of re-imagining and rebuilding resilient, local ways of living. She co-founded Transition Training and taught this model of growing community resilience in many countries. Until 2016 she continued to hold the inner dimension of this global movement, including ways to honour what we let go of as we vision a future with much less resource use and grieve the destruction caused by our present way of life.
